

What is Crede?

CREDE (Clinical Research, Education, and Development) is an independent organization that provides GCP and other clinical research training, education and development. We are focused on the clinical research environment in South Africa and the rest of Africa. Our training sessions are unique because they are fun, customized, topical, and accredited.

“Experto crede” is a Latin term that means “have faith in experience.” We are passionate about clinical research. Our programmes are grounded in wide experience in the field and expert content knowledge.

Crede’s programmes

CREDE aims to build capacity of all research staff to successfully participate in clinical and epidemiological research as well as industry standard clinical trials and to support individual career advancement. We believe that the success of a study lies in the quality of its team members. Our programmes are unique in that they are based in experience, packed with relevant and useful content, and presented in a fun and interactive way. Yes, even GCP can be fun!

Who is the face behind Crede?

Marijke Geldenhuys has been intimately involved with GCP and clinical research education for over 10 years. She has a masters degree in clinical research administration from the George Washington University (GWU), USA and an Honours degree in nursing.

She has wide experience in establishing site-based clinical training programmes as well as clinical quality control programmes. Marijke teaches clinical research as part of the faculty of the School of Medicine and Health Sciences at GWU. Her experience is both at site level and at a programmatic level. She is a gifted facilitator with an ability to run interactive and informative training sessions. Her expertise lies in assessing the needs of her clients, developing appropriate material, facilitating in an interactive and interesting manner, and providing ongoing development support. Her skills and knowledge have been applied and recognized nationally in South Africa, the rest of Africa, and internationally.

What can Crede offer?

CREDE offers the following services:

- Accredited GCP beginner courses and GCP refresher courses
- Adaptable and custom- made courses on aspects of clinical research administration, operations, and principles
- Custom made site or study specific courses

How can I find out more?

Should you require any information, if you want to book your place on a course, or would like to discuss training options, please contact us.